

Jacques Godbout qui réunissait le 21 mars 1977 une cinquantaine d'écrivains pour fonder l'association qui allait les représenter.

The University of Waterloo Library is pleased to announce that it has recently acquired the papers of noted children's writer, Barbara Smucker. Mrs. Smucker has donated to the Doris Lewis Rare Book Room, the University of Waterloo Library, her collection of manuscripts, research notes, correspondence and reviews relating to her four major published works Underground to Canada (1977), Day of terror (1979), Amish adventure (1983) and White mist (1985).

Barbara Smucker has been the recipient of the Canada Council Prize for Best Children's Novel in 1979, the All-Japan School Library Committee award and most recently the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from the University of Waterloo. Barbara Smucker's archive is available to researchers in children's literature, women's studies, and literary scholarship.

Call for papers

Children's Literature Association Quarterly will publish a special section on Religion and Children's Literature in its issue for Spring, 1989. Contributions may be on any aspect of religion in children's books, past or present, and may include single author studies, comparative studies, analyses of single books, tracings of single themes, religious picture books, religious imagery, Christian and non-Christian ideas and practice, non-traditional religious experience, religious conflict, and religious faith during times of crises.

Manuscripts should be 10-15 typed double-spaced pages. Send two copies with the author's name appearing only on the title pages. Deadline May 1, 1988. Address manuscripts or correspondence to Frank P. Riga, Department of English, Canisius College, Buffalo, New York 14208.
