

Canadian Children's Literature 1978: A Bibliography

MARY RUBIO

This bibliography records books published in 1978 which added to Canadian children's literature. One way to appreciate the growth in this field is to compare the tally for the past few years: for 1975 we recorded 296 items; for 1976, 266 items; for 1977, 336 items; now, for 1978 we list 391 items. Even a cursory glance shows the range of authors, illustrators, and publishers playing a part here. We notice for this year a wider geographic spread: more publishers in places other than Vancouver, Toronto, and Montreal. Of the total listed, 218 came from large publishing houses and the rest from small publishers such as Prairie Press of Three Hills Alberta, or Elaine Harrison and Associates of Prince Edward Island, or Applegarth Follies of London, Ontario.

We believe these lists are useful for researchers, for teachers and librarians, and for all who take an interest in this important field of literary production. As in the 1977 bibliography, items are here coded by type and by reader's age group. Code letters in brackets follow each entry. The first letter refers to the type of book, as follows:

F-fiction, fable, legend

D-drama

I-images/picture book, comic book

P-poetry

Ref-reference book

Books without a first code letter are non-fiction (e.g., travel, biography).

The second letter refers to the estimated reading level of the book's audience:

P-primary (pre-school to grade 3)

J-junior (grades 4 to 8)

S-senior (grades 9 to 11)

Books without a second code letter are for adults and professionals.

Thus, a book coded [I/P] would be a picture book for very young children, a book coded [I/J] may be a comic book for junior readers, and a book coded [I/S] may be a coffee-table type of picture or documentary book, of interest to older readers. Incidentally, we have included comic books among the French entries because of their possible usefulness in French immersion classes.

Foreign translations of Canadian books are not normally included, nor are books from France that are sold by Quebec publishers, unless they are printed with changes or adaptations by the Quebec firm. Quebec books which have been translated for English-Canadian readers, and English Canadian books translated into French are included, however. Likewise, foreign books which are translated specially for Canadian children, and hence enter our cultural mainstream, are included. Translations are listed under the translator's name only if the translator has adapted the work, as in the case of folk-tales.

We do not include reprints unless the original is substantially revised, or unless the original date of publication is more than fifty years ago. When books are reissued in paperback (as Bel-Ria, 1977, was by Bantam in 1978) they are not included.

Once again we record our gratitude to Irene Aubrey, National Children's Librarian, for her unfailing cooperation. Innumerable publishers, authors and bookstores have also kindly answered our queries about publishing details and have helped us code the entries by type and audience level. Chris Waterston prepared and checked the final lists. We would be glad to hear comments on the usefulness of these bibliographies, and suggestions for possible improvements.
